PRINCIPAL SPONSORS

PRESENTERS

John O'Brien and Connie Lyle O'Brien

John O'Brien is a leading thinker who has written widely in the field of disability. He is a pioneer and lifelong advocate of Person Centred Planning. His values-based approach emphasises learning with each person about the direction their lives could take, and challenging and overcoming practices, structures and values that lead to segregation and underestimation rather than inclusion, and an approach to change in people's lives based on 'imagining better'.

John O'Brien and Connie Lyle O'Brien work collaboratively with friends and associates from eleven countries. They have turned what they learn from people living with disability and their families and allies into books published by Inclusion Press and papers distributed by their colleagues at The Center on Human Policy at Syracuse University. These include:

- Implementing Person-Centered Planning: Voices of Experience
- A Little Book on Person Centered Planning
- Celebrating the Ordinary
- Members of Each Other
- PATH
- Action for Inclusion

John and Connie advise advocacy groups, service organisations and governments and assist them in planning and learning from their innovations. They began working with people living with disability three decades ago in institutions and have followed and supported people living with disability as they take their rightful place in community life.

Jenny Pitts

Jenny led an award-winning personalisation project in Worcestershire, called 'Doing It Your Way', which enabled over 100 people living with disability to have a personal budget. Jenny currently works independently and, as well as working for In Control in the UK, she is leading the transformation of adult social care in the large rural county of Shropshire.

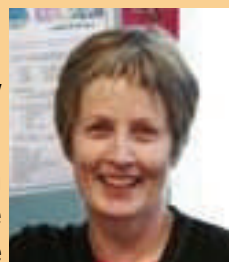

She has a background in social care and service provision. She has worked in UK local government for the last 12 years, mostly in service development and commissioning. During the last 3 years she has led personalisation projects, working with the voluntary sector and families to lead change.

Penny Hambleton

Penny is currently the facilitator of two Individualised Funding Initiatives in New Zealand, one for older people and one for people living with disability.

This role has her working in both urban and remote rural environments in southern New Zealand, and her work across the two projects enables her to witness the challenges confronting people requiring support and their ability to solve these issues in highly personalised ways.

Penny has worked in human services for over 30 years, commencing her journey as a registered nurse before moving into the quality management area. Penny's work has included an exploration of the quality of life issues and policies around frail older people requiring support and who choose to live in their own home.
